To the Scout Editor:
The scouts of Troop 21, Takoma Park, mustered in a new troop. No. 23, "Skidoo Troop," which will work along with Capt. Adna Clark is scoutmaster. We held our last meeting at the home of Assistant Scoutmaster L. Gosorn. Our troop committee met early in the week and planned a campaign to raise money to purchase a site and erect a hullding for our troop. Later we went to the citizens' association and asked them to appoint a committee to work with a committee from the Men's Club and our troop committee in starting the ampaign. In the meantime we will hold our meetings in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. Every member of our troop showed up at the rally at Convention Hall, and our team won the staff relay race and the Paul Revere race. Our exhibition the Paul Revere race. Our exhibition of rope work took well, especially throwing the life line with the knots tied in it. Our best work was the fire drill, in which we used the life line, the life not, and the "save all" fire escape. Scout Kenneth Harries came down from the roof on the life line.

A Great Mystic Story by Harold McGrath

EPISODE THIRTEEN. "The Secret of Dr. Munn's Sanitarium."

What's on the Program This Week

Meanwhile Storm and Tom Hunt have been able to gain no tree of Zudora, nor the vanished Howard, and it is nor the vanished Howard, and it is with downcast faces that they meet Jim Baird at the steamship dock. In the confusion, Bruce deftly snatches Baird's satchel, which contains the precious diamond, and dashes through the crowd.

He springs into a taxi, which is driven by one of the same, and dashes

But his pursuers are too close behind to enable him to escape without a struggle, and the same thought has struck them all. Perhaps Zudora is within these wicked walls? Baird flings aside the attendants, who would stop him at the door, while Storm and Huntforce their way in through a window.

Hurriedly they make a search of the building, finding Zudora and Howard imprisoned in an inner room, and while Storm carries her half-fainting form to the limousine, Baird and Hunt continue their quest for Bruce, who has disappeared in the melee. At last, however, they are compelled to acknowledge defeat. Bruce has got clean away with the diamond.

The cleverness of Mme. Duval, against which the wit of Zudors and her aids, John Storm, Jim Baird, and Tom Hunt, has been pitted in the numerous adventures they have had since the disappearance of Hassan All, was made clearly manifest in her next move. She ordered the seizure of Howard, the mine superintendent, and Zudors again, and directed that they be taken back to Dr. Munn's sanitarium, from which they had just been released.

"The Secret of Dr. Munn's Sanitarium."

Unfortunately, Bruce has recognized him, and so when Baird takes ship for New York, almost the first person he encounters on board is that worthy. Together they are follow-passengers during the long voyage.

As Baird already has notified Hunt and Storm that he has the gem and knows they will meet him at the pler, he has scant fears that the band will be able to trap him. He little realizes the desperate character of Mme. Duval and her aids.

Meanwhile Storm and Tom Hunt have move. She ordered the seizure of Howard, the mine superintendent, and Zudora again, and directed that they be taken back to Dr. Munn's sanitarium, from which they had just been released.

The wily adventuress calculated that The wily adventuress calculated that the sanitarium would be the very last place Zudora's friends would look for her. And this proved to be the case. They searched high and low without the slightest trace of her being found. In the meantime Zudora was being held in close confinement, her every move watched. The situation with regard the diamond mine had interested Storm and Baird so much that it was determined to send some one to South Africa to investigate the mine and determine just who owned it. Baird was selected for the job. He springs into a taxi, which is driven by one of the gang, and dashes off at top speed. But he is not to escape so easily, for Hunt, Storm and Baird leap into another machine and start in pursuit.

Then follows a mad race between the two machines. Soon the city is left behind and Bruce's vehicle turns into a road, which the trio behind recognize. A minute later it stops at the driveway of the sanatorium and Bruce dashes into the house.

termine just who owned it. Baird was selected for the job.

Again the adventuress sought to checkmate the plans of Zudora's friends by sending Bruce to South Africa to watch Baird. They arrived almost together. Bruce does not know that Baird has recognized him, and that he is watching his every move. It happens that a short time later one of the Kaffir miners unearths a sixty carat diamond—a gem of purest water, as expert examination proves, and Bruce, homesick for the joys of water, as expert examination proves, and Bruce, homesick for the joys of Broadway, cables Mme. Duval and Captain Radeliffe of the find, announcing that he will bring the diamond to New York in person. That night, as Bruce smokes his cigar. Baird is watching the waste basket, where he has hidden the treasure trove. As soon as Bruce falls asleep, Baird climbs in at the window, obtains the diamond, and escapes into the darkness, but not before Bruce, awaking, fires at him with a shotgun.

them about three years, and have been mor than pleased. For example we make ofires the first of the season, and they note go out until spring. What better advertisement would they want than that? W always recommend their coal to our friend knowing that they will be more than pleases

NEW SPRING SHAPES

We are now showing our new Spring models, and are making up very smart shapes in wire, buckram and rice-net for our early spring The styles for 1915 are unusually stractive, and indicate a rather decided departure in size and shape from those of last Spring.

Come in early and look them over. We have a large variety of shapes: you are sure to find something you will like. Last year's straw hats renovated and remodeled for spring wear in any style you desire.
